

Poems That Provoke Thought

These poems cover many areas of daily questions, activities, and traditions. The contents move to cause one to see the positive in negative situations. To think about what may happen after death. To question some of the traditions pertaining to religious activities and even social concerns. The words can be very valuable for the one who likes to find themselves meditating on the positive. Words that focus on the belief there is a higher power that man should acknowledge. And words that focus on mans daily strifes. It is a must read for an uplifting experience found in words formed to tell a story, share a feeling ,or to simply question a tradition.
