

The Sex Novel

When a wannabe sci-fi author receives his 1000th rejection letter, how can he possibly recover? Easy, by getting drunk and writing a best-selling sex novel. Middle-aged clerk, Reuben Rudge has been writing sci-fi novels for years and getting nowhere. His latest rejection letter is the last straw, so he drinks himself senseless in front of the TV watching a late night documentary about BDSM. In the morning he wakes up naked on the hall floor with a new manuscript to post. He receives a letter from a publisher addressed to, Ms Raspberry Caine, inviting her to contract talks for her debut adult novel, Disciplinary Attraction. After finding the manuscript on his laptop Rudge is shocked by its content, and even more so when he realises that hes the one who wrote it. Fearing a lack of credibility he persuades young Becky, a complete stranger at his bus stop, to stand-in for him as Raspberry Caine at the publishers offices. The novel becomes an international bestseller and Rudge lies to his over-bearing wife about a new job he has in London. He employs Becky full-time as Raspberry Caine and she bluffs her way through the book launch party and enters the sordid world of celebrity. She attends a succession of kinky masked balls and other functions hosted by the rich and famous and the arty-farty glitterati. Rudge is under pressure to write a sequel, but has no ideas whatsoever. Becky steps-in to help by documenting the scandalous sexploits of her famous A-lister showbiz friends, but forgets to change their real names in the manuscript. Will a scandal unfold in the cocooned world of celebrity? Will Mrs Rudge find out about her husbands secret life?
