

Encounter (NHB Modern Plays)

In 1969 Loren McIntyre, a National Geographic photographer, found himself lost among the people of the remote Javari Valley in Brazil. It was an encounter that was to change his life, bringing the limits of human consciousness into startling focus. Inspired by the book Amazon Beaming by Petru Popescu, The Encounter traces McIntyre's journey into the depths of the Amazon rainforest, incorporating innovative technology into a solo performance to build a shifting world of sound. The Encounter opened at the Edinburgh International Festival in August 2015 performed by Simon McBurney, and received its London premiere at the Barbican in February 2016 before embarking on a world tour. Masterful storytelling from a man and a company who are incapable of remaining within known theatrical boundaries - Independent The stuff of a twisting, turning, thoroughly engrossing fairytale... McBurney captures the metaphysical spirit - as well as the pulse-quicken heart - of the experience with this head-turning, spellbinding show - Telegraph The effect is a soundcloud of a process, in which fact and fiction, past and present, research and production intermingle, spinning a story out of the air - Variety In a solo performance made with many people... [McBurney] pulls the thread of a story from out of the noise of contemporary western life and the sounds of the jungle to create a meditation on interconnectedness, perception and time - Guardian The Encounter is a tour de force that shows contemporary theatre at its most immersive and thought-provoking - Financial Times
