

Four Months Afoot in Spain (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Four Months Afoot in Spain Yet another story of travels in western Europe, especially one having for its basis the mere random wanderings of a four-months absence from home, may seem almost to call for apology. If so, it is hereby duly tendered. What befell me on this vacation jaunt is no story of harrowing adventure, nor yet a record of the acquisition of new facts. But as I covered a thousand miles of the Iberian peninsula on foot, twice that distance by third-class rail, and am given to mingling with the masses, it may be that there have filtered into the following pages some facts and impressions that will be new to the reader. Yet it is less to record these than to answer a question that has often been put to me since my return: How can a man make such a journey on $172?
