

War and Insurance: An Address Delivered Before the Philosophical Union of the University of California at Its Twenty-Fifth Anniversary at Berkeley, California, August 27, 1914 (Classic Reprint)

As a preparation for an address which I had been invited to deliver on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Philosophical Union of the University of California, I read to a general audience, at the summer session of that University at Berkeley (during the last fortnight of July, in the present year) a series of six philosophical lectures. These six preparatory lectures contained a restatement of the theory of what I had called, in a recent book of mine, the Process of Interpretation, and, in particular, discussed the nature and functions of Communities of Interpretation. What this last term means the reader of this present book may learn, if he pleases, on pages 47-64. I had intended to continue and to summarize the main theses of these six lectures in my anniversary address before the Union.
