

Opening My Mind

Opening My Mind is self-expression at a time of personal crisis. Mary Turner began writing prayers to God, asking for comfort and peace of mind. She realized God had given her a medium to express the deeply buried emotions she had always felt too inhibited to speak aloud. Her poems are about her husband and family, happiness and loneliness, growing old and death. As time passed, the benefits of her writing became apparent. The lighthearted side of her, always there but suppressed beneath life's burdens, began to emerge. Her poetry revived memories of places she had visited, friends she had loved, and objects that had significance in her life. Her imagination, freed through her poetry, reveals a humorous, often comical side of Mary as she describes funny friends, awkward situations, and amusing anecdotes. The inspiration of Mrs. Turner's spiritual and emotional growth shines through the poems as she puts her life into words. As you enter into the pages of this book, you too will find your own life woven within its lines.
