

Give em Hell, Hari

The war of Indian independence may have ended in 1947, but for a group of Indian journalists in a US news bureau in Delhi, it is still far from over 45 years later. Only Hari Rana, letter writer, aspiring reporter, unstoppable writer of letters on diverse subjects and head of communications, can bridge the gap between East and West. Its a mission that sends him to the heart of enemy territory: to the United States itself. What he finds there sends him home a very changed man.
