Till he be brought unto the empress face, For testimony of these foul proceedings: And see the ambush of our friends be strong: I fear, the emperor means no good to us. Aar. Some devil whisper curses in mine ear, And prompt me, that my tongue may utter forth The venomous malice of my swelling heart! Luc. Away, inhuman dog! unhallowd sla,ve!--Sirs, help our uncle to convey him in.--Exeunt Goths, with Aaron. Flourish. The trumpets show, the emperor is at hand. Enter Saturninus and Tamora, with Tribunes, Senators, and Others. Sat. What, hath the firmament more suns than one? Luc. What boots it thee, to call thyself a sun? Mar. Romes emperor, and nephew, break the parle; These quarrels must be quietly debated. The feast is ready, which the careful Titus Hath ordaind to an honourable end, For peace, for love, for league, and good to Rome: Please you, therefore, draw nigh, and take your places. Sat. Marcus, we will. Hautboys sound. The Company-sit down at table. Enter Titus, dressed like a cook, Lavinia, veiled, young Lucius, and Others. Titus places the dishes on the table. Tit. Welcome, my gracious lord; welcome, dread queen; Welcome, ye warlike Goths; welcome, Lucius; And welcome, all: although the cheer be poor, Twill rill your stomachs; please you, eat of it. Sat. Why art thou thus attird, Andronicus? Tit. Because I would be sure to have all well, To entertain your highness, and your empress. Tam. We arc beholden to you, good Andronicus. Tit. An if your highness knew my heart, you were. My lord the emperor, resolve me this Was it well done ef rash Virginius, To slay his daughter with his own right hand, Because she was enforced, stained and deflowered?

Sat. It was, Andronicus. Tit. Your reason, mighty lord? Sa...
