

The Mine with the Iron Door: A Romance

The Novel Harold Bell Wright (1872-1944) was a best-selling American writer during the first half of the 20th century, and is said to be the first American to sell a million copies of a novel and the first to make $1 million from writing fiction. The Mine with the Iron Door is set in and around Tucson, Arizona in the early 20th century. This story is set in the Canada del Oro (Canyon of Gold) in the Santa Catalina Mountains near Tucson, Arizona. Harold Bell Wright took his title from the name of one of the areas best known lost mines. The Legend The Iron Door Mine legend has been attributed to Jesuit priests who lived in the area until 1767 when they were ordered to return to Spain by the pope. The legend continues that the priests hid gold that they mined near Oracle by building an iron door over the entrance before they left. They never returned and the gold may still be there, hidden by hundreds of years of dirt and growth.- Flint Carter The Westerns In 1924 was produced American silent epic Western melodrama directed by Sam Wood and produced by Sol Lesser. The film is based on the novel. Major actors that starred included Pat O'Malley, Dorothy Mackaill, and Raymond Hatton as the Lizard. The film was shot on location in the Tucson Arizona Valley, Oracle, Arizona, and Mt. Lemmon. While shooting the film the cast and crew stayed at the Triangle L Ranch and the Wilson Ranch (Rancho Linda Vista) outside of Oracle, Arizona off Historic US Route 80. In 1936 was released a motion picture remake by the same title directed by David Howard with stars Richard Arlen, Cecilia Parker, and Henry B. Walthall.
