Why do people die? Any website or scientist will recite to you some complicated essay about human mortality, while youre left wondering: is there any way to prevent it? Hopefully, by the time your time comes, you will not want to prevent it. Thats not to say youll wish to die, but rather youll know that youve lived your life to its highest capacity, and you have no more valid reasons for hanging around anymore. Sometimes death will come unexpectedly, in which case you would do anything, even things you would cringe at from the outside, to escape your impending fate. But what if you thought death as a disease that they hadnt cured yet? One that you are infected with from the first moment in the hospital until the virus consumes you entirely. A plague that slowly possesses you as you get older until your body and soul cant fight it no more, a sleeper cell that is activated when the time is appropriate. Death has become accepted and sometimes celebrated constant of our world. Until March 5, 2061, when death for the very first time, seemed mortal.
