

What Would Oprah Do

Cate Sanders is a 32-year-old woman living on her own in Atlanta, who's at a crossroads. After being laid off from her corporate job, she's determined to find a new career path. To help guide her, she looks to the woman she admires most, Oprah Winfrey. At every new phase she writes a letter to Oprah, knowing in all probability her hero won't be reading them, but finds hope and inspiration from imagining what Oprah's words of wisdom would be. With Amelia Bedelia tendencies and a Chelsea Handler attitude, Cate's mishaps provide humor, while her relationships give the story depth. Throughout her amusing and heartwarming trials, she searches for the answer to one question. Can she find her purpose in life by pursuing her passion?
